

Story of Bee Touch?

Scientists, assigned for duty by a company based in the UK and thus studying bee venom and regional factors in the Kakheti region of Georgia meet with Mrs. Marina, a member of a family engaged in beekeeping for generations. At that time, light, smooth and younger looking skin of the 58-year-old Marina draws researchers' attention. Although habitants of the region follow a natural diet and live in fresh air, Marina's skin is different from the others.

The fact that Marina, engaged in beekeeping and performed her work without protective clothing, is exposed to dozens or even hundreds of times more bee venom from a normal human being did not escape the attention of researchers. And the fact that caviar, abundant in that region, occupies a principal place in her list of food leads to the conclusion that this miraculous effect might be due to a combination of bee venom and caviar. After years of formulation studies, this miraculous cream you witness by using Bee Touch is developed.

Important Active Ingredients

Bee Venom

Bee venom has been used for centuries in order to take advantage of its numerous benefits because it strengthens immune system, accelerates blood circulation, has antibacterial and antibiotic effects, provides protection against harmful effects of radiation and has many other useful effects. Bee venom is referred to as apitoxin in the literature.

The polypeptide contained in apitoxin and called Melittin is consisted of 26 different amino acids. Melittin is the basis point for anti-aging effect of bee venom. Melittin accelerates cell-to-cell exchange by activating the membrane formed by the phospholipids- of the cells in the lower layers of the skin.

Yet another peptide in bee venom is apamin. Apamin has skin restorative and anti-inflammatory properties. In addition to these two important agents, proteins, phospholipids and enzymes can be listed as natural and effective content of bee venom as well. Then again, bee venom has other agents such as formic and malic acids, magnesium, copper, calcium and many essential oil, histamine, colin and sulfur which help to solve kink problems, to repair, calm and improve skin.

Bee venom can cause natural cortisol secretion in the body, and thus it can also help the skin to repair itself under the effect of cortisol. Bee venom, acting as a barrier for skin, helps to protect the skin from environmental effects and to moisturize the skin.

Caviar

Despite its high price, it is one of the most effective and important ingredients of beauty and care products due to intense skin renewal effect with the help of vitamins A, C and E as well as zinc, selenium and iron minerals, also so-called Omega 3, the most useful oil.

B 3 Vitamini (Niacin)

Despite the fact that Bee Touch includes many unique vitamins, Niacin distinguishes itself from other vitamins not only helping to fight against drooping skin and wrinkles but also against all anti-aging effects on skin through affecting active proteins..

Cayenne Pepper Extract

Cayenne pepper, frequently mentioned because of its beneficial affect for losing weight, is included into formula of Bee Touch cream because of the fact that it helps to a more effective and quicker absorption of product by accelerating the metabolism.
